Park View Canal Signage Installation

Project Advisory: Monday, May 8, 2023

Project Background

The "No Contact with Water" advisory remains in place for Park View Canal. Water sampling results continue to show a fecal indicator bacteria concentration that exceeds recreational water quality standards established by the Florida Department of Health. The advisory recommends not swimming or engaging in recreational water activities (i.e. fishing, kayaking, paddle boarding, etc.) along the waterway until the advisory is lifted.

The City of Miami Beach continues to work closely with water quality experts and governmental regulatory agencies to address the water quality concerns in this waterway. An action plan is underway, and efforts include rigorous sampling, infrastructure testing and improvements, and sanitation and code enhancements. To learn more about the water quality within the Park View Canal please visit www.mbrisingabove.com/Parkview.

What's Happening

The City will be installing additional "No Contact with Water" signs along the Park View Canal to continue advising the public of the ongoing water quality concerns. The signs will be posted or updated at the locations depicted in the attached map (see legend for details).

What to Expect

- The sign installations are scheduled for this week.
- City employees and vehicles will be on-site during this time for the installation of the signs.

Legend

-  = In-ground signage
-  = Signs mounted on bridge and kayak launch pile
-  = Existing signage to be updated
